

KNOW YOUR REALTOR

by Grace Hinshaw

On a Tuesday morning nine years ago, Ben Rothenberg, who since 1932 had been a salesman representing New York men's clothing manufacturers in Portland, Oregon, drove into the Los Angeles area, looked around, spotted Lomita, and dusted off his real estate shingle. This shingle now hangs at 1747 Pacific Coast Highway, Lomita, where Rothenberg and Delbert Vaughn conduct an active real estate business.

This was the hatching of a dream that Ben and his wife, Sandra, had been incubating for many years—dating away back to New

BEN ROTHENBERG

York City where Ben was born and educated. Selling has been Ben's profession since the beginning of his business career.

Chances are that Ben and his 16-year-old daughter Elsie, a 10th grade student at Narbonne High school, will have a wonderful summer on their own — planning meals, cooking them, and keeping their house livable — while Mrs. Rothenberg takes a air trip to visit her father and brother in Aberdeen and Glasgow, Scotland! She plans to be gone for two months, traveling via the Scandinavian Airways. Lang may her lum reki!

Ben is an active member of the Multiple Listing Committee, chairman of the Ethical Committee of the Realty Board, a member of the National Real Estate Boards as well as the California Real Estate Board. With the responsibilities of these committees and a brisk business, there isn't too much extra time, but if and when there is, woodworking ranks top with Ben as a hobby.
